Annual Christmas Party!

Profiled by Tom Lang

Our December 8th breakfast at Pardini's will be our annual Christmas Party! This year, we welcome back the talents of Mr. Bill Thornbury and the student choir from St. Helen's School, who will perform Christmas carols to carry us through the holiday season.

We will have plenty of time for networking, a fun raffle, and even an appearance by ol' St. Nick himself! (Spoiler alert! This newsletter identifies Santa!) The club's Spiritual Advisor, Fr. Craig Plunkett, will impart a special Christmas message to inspire us and remind us to always focus on Christ at home and in our vocations during this most wonderful time of the year.

Attendees are asked to bring mittens, coats, scarves and/or cash for our annual donation to Catholic Charities.

ABOUT ST. HELEN'S SCHOOL

Saint Helen's School was opened in September of 1953 as a mission school with grades one through five. The school was administered and staffed by the Holy Cross Sisters the first year. The School Sisters of Notre Dame took over the school the following year. Grades kindergarten and six were added. On December 8, 1955, the mission received parish status.

In 1993, after 39 years, the last of the School Sisters of Notre Dame served as a teacher on a staff consisting primarily of lay persons. For the next three school years there were two Sisters of the Franciscan Hospitallers of the Immaculate Conception congregation, one of whom served as principal. At present, St. Helen's School is staffed by an experienced and dedicated faculty of lay people.

This past spring, faced with mounting operational deficits, the school was facing imminent closure, but the community came together to save the school for the future. While financial challenges still exist, St. Helen's School continues to provide much needed Catholic education in southeast Fresno and certainly deserves continued support from the entire diocese.

Speaker Recap Deacon Bill Lucido

By Norma Williams

What would motivate one to trek 500 miles across Spain through blowing winds, varying temperatures, steep inclines, sheep dung on boots, and falling in a briar patch? Deacon Bill Lucido of St. Paul Catholic Newman Center addressed this question in his November 10 presentation to CPBC members and guests. Reasons might be to atone for one's sins, to offer gratitude to God, to bridge transitions or to re-evaluate life, to cry to God for help, to become more contemplative, or simply as an athletic event.

Pilgrim Bill Lucido

Deacon Bill was one of 278,232 pilgrims who walked the Way of St. James to Santiago de Compostela, finishing on his 72nd birthday in October 2015, and losing 22 pounds along the way. The first day took 11 hours at 4900 feet elevation. He prepared by walking about 500 miles around the Fresno area over six months.

A typical pilgrimage day began about 6 a.m. and concluded well after 8 p.m. Yellow arrows and replicas of seashells guided to the destination. Stamps were received along the way and were presented as evidence at the end in order to receive one's certificate of completion. Pilgrims help each other navigate the often arduous caminos on which some deaths have occurred.

St. James preached in Galacia around 40 A.D. before returning to Jerusalem. A shepherd is believed to have found his remains in the 800s. The Cathedral of Santiago de Compostela, the legendary burial site of the Apostle, was consecrated in 1211. Since then, millions of pilgrims have traversed the Pyrenean foothills to the holy site.

Business Person of the Month Michael O'Hare – AKA Santa Mike

Little did I realize that nine years ago that taking a few months off from shaving my beard would change my walk with Christ. This service has given me an opportunity to bring the joy and hope of Christ's life to many during the holiday season. In turn, I have been blessed through the interactions with those in need. Because I had gain a "few pounds" through the year and my hair became whiter, a dear friend, Judy, a member of St. Paul's Catholic Newman Center, encouraged me to become a Santa. She had a Santa suit to loan me, and I was off with sleigh bells in hand. I have since had the opportunity of being Santa to a number of local organizations including but not limited to Right To Life, Family Connections Christian Adoption, St. Anthony of Padua, Catholic Charities, The ARC Fresno, United Way, and St. Joseph's youth group.

Book Review

By John Kasaian

Daylight After a Century

By George Jerjian

277 pages, paperbound

Antares, Yerevan, 2015

ISBN 978-9939-51-826-8

My daughter bought me this copy of a curious book, "Daylight After A Century," Dr. George Djerdian's collection of photographs of pre-1915 Ottoman life in Eastern Anatolia.

This is a compilation of 100 photographs and magic lantern slides surviving out of 240, taken by Dr. Djerdian in his home town of Arabkir and his college town of Ezeroum, and hidden in a metal box for 100 years, moving with the Dr. Djerdian from Arabkir to Alexandria, Egypt (50 years), Khartoum, Sudan (20 years), London, England (30 years), and Washington DC (10 years) until the undeveloped glass plates were developed and then published by his son, George Jerjian.

It is important collection of images for several reasons, among them is that they are a the visual record of Armenian and Pontus Greek life in the Ottoman Empire before the massacres during WWI, and at that time it fell to Christians to take photographs, as creating images was considered an affront to Islam and something no Muslim would have done. While plenty of passing scholars and tourists engaged in photography, here we have a native, with a native's eye, and that makes a difference.

The images are organized into topics: water, land, people, churches, schools, economic life, political life, social life, and personal images having to do with the photographer, Dr. Djerdian. Information given for each image is sparse, but provides much for the imagination. There is considerable information regarding the good Doctor's camera, a 1904 Goerz Anschutz Field Camera with a 180mm f/6.8 Doppel Anastigmat series III for shooting on 6-1/2" x 4-3/4" glass plates.

What truly caught my attention was the number of photographs taken of an ancient Armenian Chalcedonian (Armenian Catholics in communion with Rome) Monastery. There is not a lot of anything regarding Armenians Chalcedonian Catholics mentioned, much less illustrated in books.

Another curious feature is that these plates would have been exposed between 1904 (obviously if the camera was circa 1904) and the 1915 massacres. The Armenian community appears for the most part prosperous and this within 20 years of the Hamidian massacres of Armenians and Assyrians in Turkey in 1895-96 by Sultan Abdul Hammid II.

You can ask Cotter Religious Goods to get you a copy. If you like historic photography you'll find it intriguing.

Board Profile: John Gerardi, Right to Life of Central California

John Gerardi grew up in Clovis, and is a graduate of the University of Notre Dame (2010) and Notre Dame Law School (2013). At Notre Dame, John met his lovely wife Holly, and they married in 2013. They have two beautiful daughters, Madeleine (2 and a half) and Sophia (15 months). After two years of practicing law in Massachusetts, and a year working for California Family Council fighting against anti-family legislation in Sacramento, John joined Right to Life of Central California as Executive Director in September 2016. His family are parishioners in the Holy Cross Chaplaincy for the traditional Latin Mass at St. Anthony of Padua, where he sings in the Gregorian Chant choir. He is a member of the bar in Massachusetts and California.

John took the time to answer a few questions to help the CP&BC membership learn a little bit more about him.

How do you incorporate your faith into your daily life?

I am highly imperfect, and realize how much I am in need of God's grace in order to be a better husband, father, and employer. Daily prayer has to be a foundational part of everyone's life, and I try to do this through attending daily Mass, and daily prayer in the evenings with my wife and daughters.

What's important about being a Catholic in today's society?

Being a Catholic, on its own, isn't enough in the current cultural climate. Living an authentically Catholic life, and allowing the Church's less popular and more culturally challenging teachings to shape one's lifestyle and beliefs, is what's critical. It is precisely in these more challenging teachings — on marriage and family, the dignity of the human person, openness to life, etc. — where fidelity to Christ and his Church is most needed, and most personally fruitful and rewarding. Later in her life, St. Bernadette Soubirous, the visionary of Lourdes, said the only things she feared were bad Catholics — nothing else. How can we claim to be good Catholics if our faith only impacts what we say on Sundays, and not what we do or how we live the rest of the week?

Why did you agree to be a board member of the CP&BC Board?

I believe in the organization's mission, and want to do my part to further it. CP&BC is a wonderful resource, a community of committed Catholic business owners who strive to build one another up in the faith and support one another's endeavors. I'm delighted to be on the board, and hope to serve it ably.
